SPIRITUALITY IN PALLIATIVE CARE

A one Day Workshop on Thursday 22nd April 2010
at Mercy Hospice Auckland, 61 College Hill, Ponsonby, Auckland

Richard Egan is a Research and Teaching fellow in Preventative and Social Medicine, Dunedin School of Medicine, University of Otago. Working in the Cancer Society Social and Behavioural Research Unit, Richard teaches under and post-graduate health promotion; and his current research is examining psycho-social-spiritual support service referral practices. He has recently finished his PhD which examined spirituality in end-of-life care. Richard's Master's thesis examined spirituality in New Zealand state education.

- What is spirituality?
- Do you know how to address spiritual issues with your patients?
- Do you know how to include spirituality in your assessment?
- Understand your mandate for spiritual care?
- Want to fill this gap?
